Meet the Founder

Vince Agnew is a Grand Rapids, Michigan native and a 2006 graduate of Catholic Central High School. After standout seasons in football and track & field, he took his academic and athletic career to Central Michigan University on a full-ride football scholarship.

Serving as a defensive back for the Chippewas, the team went on to claim 3

Mid-American Conference Championships between 2006 and 2010. After earning a degree in Journalism, he continued his football career professionally in the NFL with the Dolphins, Cowboys, Chiefs and with the CFL's Toronto Argonauts before retiring in 2016 and beginning as a freelance journalist for the NFL League Office's Player Engagement Department writing human-interest pieces on hall-of-famers, all-pros, Super Bowl champions and more.

Vince stays involved in the community in various facets, volunteering time, guest speaking with teams, at schools, banquets and events in Michigan and beyond.

He also works as a fitness professional in Midland, Michigan, coaches high school football, is husband to his college sweetheart, Stephanie, and father to their three sons, Logan, Swayze and Murphy.

Vince was named a top 20 business owner/philanthropist under the age of 40 in the Midland region in 2021 by the Midland Daily News.
